In addition to assisting in the relocation of the International Spy Museum in D.C., Ely's mountmaking team was in charge of the design, fabrication and installation of over 750 mounts for objects to be displayed in the museum's new exhibit space. Our team also designed, engineered mounts and hardware for and installed a number of oversized objects including an Amber Surveillance Drone, a "Sleeping Beauty" motorized submersible canoe and a full scale replica of a Revolutionary War era "Turtle" submarine. The brand new International Spy Museum building and exhibits are scheduled to open in May 2019.
